You should consider reserving a table for ten (10) at the banquet. That way you and your friends will be assured that you can share a table at the banquet with those who you want to be with.

There are forms included in this newsletter that you can use to request banquet tickets or become a banquet sponsor.

You may also want to reserve a room and stay over after the banquet at the Westminster Westin. Outdoor Buddies guests can reserve a room at a reduced rate of $94.00 per night plus tax. You can reserve your rooms online at:

<https://www.starwoodmeeting.com/Book/outdoor2015>

If you have suggestions or comments, you are encouraged to contact any of the Outdoor Buddies board members. You can reach me at: (719) 783-9044 or dwayne.robey@outdoorbuddies.org.

Executive Director's Comments

By Dwayne Robey

It's time to make plans to attend the annual Outdoor Buddies Fundraiser Banquet. The 2015 banquet celebrates thirty-one years of community service by Outdoor Buddies.

The 2015 banquet will be held at The Westminster Westin on Saturday, April 11th.

Banquet tickets are now on sale and can be purchased using the forms included in this newsletter or from the Outdoor Buddies website at www.outdoorbuddies.org.

The annual banquet is the most important event of the year for Outdoor Buddies. This annual fundraiser event provides a large portion of the funds needed to support Outdoor Buddies programs throughout the year.

Attendance and participation in fundraising activities at the banquet are great ways to show your support of our organization. So, please make plans to attend the banquet and invite all your family and friends to come also.

President's Column

By Larry Sanford

Happy Holidays! Our hunt coordinators have been working very hard to get all of the mobility-impaired hunters who sent in hunt requests for the 2014 season and were placed on big game hunts out on their hunts. The hunts will continue through January 31, 2015.

This time of year you will be seeing information about fundraising in our newsletters simply because this is when we typically start ramping up awareness of the different ways you can donate funds that are necessary for us to continue our mission. If you can, please help by donating and help someone get an outdoor experience of a lifetime!

Our board of directors has been busy with preparations for the Outdoor Buddies booth at the International Sportsmen's Expo (ISE) in January. Colorado Parks and Wildlife has invited Outdoor Buddies to have a booth again this year in their "Youth Fair" section at the ISE. This is always a great event that allows us to share the Outdoor Buddies mission with attendees, meet new members, as well as selling raffle tickets as a part of our annual fundraising efforts. We are able to demonstrate some the adaptive equipment and photos of events that we have been putting on throughout the year made possible by fundraising activities.

We are always excited to meet new people as well as catch up with exhibitors who we see each year!

It excites me to look back on past years when we have been so blessed to have booths and remember all of the volunteers, mobility-impaired persons, and families who are with us still today because of meeting them at the ISE; thanks to our involvement with Colorado Parks and Wildlife. If you make it to ISE this year please stop by the Outdoor Buddies booth and say hello.

I hope that each of you have a very Merry Christmas and a blessed New Year with your family and friends!

Raffle & Banquet Ticket Sales at Sportsman's Warehouse in Colorado Springs

Terry Nelson and Kathy Shears will be at the Sportsman's Warehouse in Colorado Springs on Saturday, February 7th to sell raffle and banquet tickets for the Outdoor Buddies annual fundraiser banquet.

They are very happy to have recruited Dylan Harrell to assist in the sales. Terry and Kathy have done this sale the past couple of years and it is such fun and so rewarding.

This is an extremely busy Sportsman's Warehouse store, so it keeps them hopping all day and the response from the customers when they hear about Outdoor Buddies has been amazing.

We are so pleased that the Bardfield family has volunteered to do another sale day at the same store on Saturday the 28th of February.

For those of you who have yet to meet the Bardfields, they are a delightful family and very excited about helping Outdoor Buddies. Chris Bardfield is now working on keeping our Facebook Page up to date and once you meet their son, Stetson, you will never forget him!

If you are in the area on these dates please stop by and visit with us.

Outdoor Buddies extends our thanks and gratitude to Sportsman's Warehouse store manager, John Fly and his staff, for providing this great opportunity for Outdoor Buddies.

Hunt Committee Update By Larry Sanford

The outdoor hunting experience stories included in our newsletters speak for themselves! In our monthly newsletters you read great stories from the mobility-impaired and youth hunters as they experience the outdoors through Outdoor Buddies activities.

These activities are made possible through the efforts of our great volunteers as well as the landowners who donate access to their land where these events take place, Thank you!

The other major key piece to making these stories happen is the Outdoor Buddies Board of Directors and our Officers. They work very hard throughout the year

How Do I Contribute to Outdoor Buddies via the WMVCF Spirit Campaign?

The Wet Mountain Valley Community Foundation conducts its annual Community Spirit Matching campaign to benefit local nonprofit organizations each November through the end of the year.

The Foundation will contribute matching funds, when donations are received by December 31st.

The maximum amount that will be matched is $1,000 per family and/or business. Matching funds will be pro-rated based on the dollar total of contributions made through the campaign.

Donations may also be made directly to the Community Foundation Spirit Campaign to increase the volunteering their time, money, resources, and knowledge to help raise funds to cover the many expenses involved in operating a nonprofit organization. I am so excited to have some new volunteers who have signed up to be members of the Outdoor Buddies Board!

Most of our big game hunts have gone well this year even though the weather has been a little warm and windy. The youth outreach pronghorn doe hunts have been a lot of fun for the families and youth. Most of the youth who hunted pronghorn went on their first hunt ever! The hunts took place on Meadow Springs Ranch north of Wellington. It is a pleasure to see new young outdoors men and women continue a great outdoor heritage that will give them great memories to look back on as they go through life.

We are currently looking for additional private property for 2015 hunting events, as well as confirming 2015 hunt slots on private properties where we have held hunting events this year. Our goal is to have a hunt slot for every mobility-impaired hunter who submits a big game hunt request.

We are currently planning some waterfowl hunts and have scheduled a chucker for February 21st.

If you are interested in going on any hunting outings please contact me.

Good hunting and have a great Holiday season!

Late Season Pronghorn Hunt

By Douglas Conner

I contacted Larry Sanford to ask if he could assist me on a late season antelope hunt. He agreed and we set it up for December 1st at Meadow Springs Ranch.

The temperature that morning hovered in the low teens, but luckily the wind was pretty calm for the area.

Here is how it went:

7:40 a.m.

As we exited the highway a small herd of ten antelope was right next to the road. My nurse/gun assistant, Tammy, and I followed Larry to the 'Shed Shack', named by me, which is an abandoned home with an outbuilding. Larry parked his truck, jumped into my van, and off we went looking to locate some antelope.

8:00 a.m.

I drove onto the ranch and immediately to the west were a herd of Black Angus cattle and a herd of antelope.

We drove another quarter mile to separate the cows from the turbo goats for a safe shot.

I stopped, Larry spotted the one I should attempt to harvest and he ranged it at 200 plus yards. Tammy prepared the gun for me to shoot, I steadied myself, fired, and the doe dropped in her tracks.

I used a .270 caliber Sako with 150 grain Winchester bullet. Not having the use of my fingers I am able to have the trigger pulled with the TM 100 trigger mechanism made by Be Adaptive.

I drove out on the field to retrieve the animal, Larry and Tammy pulled it into my van and we drove back to the 'Shed Shack' where Larry hoisted the doe, dressed and skinned it. He then reloaded her into the van after slipping on an Alaska game bag which Larry graciously provided and away we went.

10 a.m.

We hit the highway to drop the antelope off to be processed at Steve's Meat Market in Olde Arvada, Colorado. The doe dressed out at 54 lbs. It was a good choice from Larry to suggest I harvest that particular antelope.

Larry Sanford and Douglas Conner.

12:00 noon

Tammy and I arrived back home near Denver, had a good lunch and took a nap.

That hunt was by far the quickest of my life. I can now check off another item on my bucket for accomplishing the Triple Crown by harvesting a deer, elk, and antelope.

What a memorable year and a full freezer of organic meat.

Thank you again, Outdoor Buddies!

A Pronghorn Hunt With Outdoor Buddies

By Michael G Sabbeth

Michael Sabbeth, Esq.

For many years I have been honored to participate in shooting events with Outdoor Buddies members and supporters. Hunting for pronghorn with them in early October in northern Colorado was a new experience. Outdoor Buddies is a volunteer organization founded by representatives of Craig Hospital, the world-renowned spinal cord and brain injury hospital located in Denver, and the Colorado Parks and Wildlife. Its mission is to provide outdoor adventure experiences to mobility-disabled outdoor enthusiasts.

Volunteers donate what they can so I offered to provide ammunition, a rifle and a scope. I had none of these items but, as the saying goes, I know people. I called some industry colleagues who helped me and described my needs: Jason Morton at CZ-USA, Dave Domin at Leupold and to Jackie Stenton at Fiocchi USA, who has never refused a charitable request. Jason recommended the CZ Model 557 Carbine in 6.5 x 55 Swedish Mauser caliber. Dave promptly sent the superb VX-2 3-9x40 mm scope and the exquisitely compact RX-1200i TBR rangefinder. Jackie provided an array of Fiocchi 6.5 x 55 ammunition.

Having only a few days before the hunt to sight in the rifle, I called Doug Hamilton and his son, Mitch, at the Family Shooting Center at Cherry Creek State Park. They are deeply engaged in an array of charitable causes involving veterans and disabled shooters. Mitch mounted and bore-sighted the Leupold scope on the CZ and got me to the head of the line for a shooting station. The CZ's performance right out of the box was impressive. At one hundred yards all my groups with each Fiocchi load was no greater than one inch and a few 3-shot groups were less. Good enough, I figured, knowing no one was going to take a long range shot.

The Pronghorn Hunt

We gathered for the hunt 5:30 on a chilly Saturday morning at a campsite boasting large tents, half a dozen or so campers, hot coffee and a lot of doughnuts. A half-moon hung like a flare in a gray-black cloudless sky drenched with stars sparkling like diamonds. Gusts of wind penetrated my several layers of heavy clothing like daggers. Dwaine Robey, Executive Director, and Larry Sanford, President, orchestrated the dozen hunters and twenty or so volunteers with the precision of directing Swan Lake. If I needed anything, Larry said, "We'll fix you up from duct tape to marbles." I was comforted.

I would hunt with 14-year-old Stetson Bardfield and his dad, Shai, an army helicopter pilot, and our driver and guide, David Cox. David is a seasoned hunter who has dedicated hundreds of hours to causes such as Outdoor Buddies hunts. Young Stetson has two prosthetic legs and disfigured arms and hands. Larry asked Shai how his son shoots, inquiring not about his son's accuracy but what kind of prosthetic device, if any, the young man needed. "How does he pull the trigger?" Larry asked.

Still dark and icy cold, we climbed into David's four-door pick-up. Pick-ups and cars drove off into the darkness, their headlamps pinpricks of light dotting the terrain like oversized lightning bugs. Shai carried Stetson on his back to the front passenger seat, adjusted his son's prosthetic legs and seated him securely.

We drove north on a dirt road for several miles, pulled off, and, for Stetson's use, removed a battery-powered machine called an Action Trackstander from the trailer. The machine is a self-propelled chair on steroids, with tank-like treads, a wheel on each of two bars that extend in the front and two in the rear to stabilize the machine and to enable it to navigate hills up and down as steep as forty-five degrees without tipping over forward or backward. The seat can elevate Stetson to a full standing position. Affixed on the left side of the handlebar was an adjustable gun mount. Funding for two Action Trackstanders, which cost about $17,000.00 each, was provided via a grant with funds donated from the Out Of The Box Foundation and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coors.

Stetson exited the pick-up and, aided by his dad, maneuvered to the tracker and got buckled in. Watching Shai lovingly and patiently help his son would bring tears to a statue. It did to me, at any rate. The three of us walked along with Stetson as he silently motored to the north, soon to be bathed in the light of a stunning sunrise. After a short time we approached a herd of pronghorn perhaps 600 yards distant. They were spread out as if in single file and seemed unperturbed by our slow advance. We were upbeat because Stetson had a doe license and several doe were standing or bedded down. A few bucks stood as if on guard. The largest buck watched us and slowly ambled to the north, perhaps to draw us away, then turned and walked directly toward us. According to the rangefinder, it got within 150 yards.

I was thrilled. I had never seen a herd of pronghorn at such close range or seen such magisterial behavior of a buck. We glassed the area to our right and saw several doe still bedded down. We approached to within 200 yards. Stetson positioned the tracker so he had a straight line of sight. He and his dad tinkered with the rifle in the gun rest and adjusted the Leupold scope. Apparently the time consumed and the considerable motion alerted the herd, for they trotted off and down a hill about a half mile away.

I asked Stetson how he was doing. "Good," he said. "I'm having a lot of fun." I told him he was a remarkable young man. "Thank you," he replied, as if embarrassed by my praise. His attitude was transcendent; he never complained, he never had a frown, and he had the most beautiful smile, framed by his young face and blonde hair, appearing more akin to a Rubens cherub than a 14-year-old going out on a hunt with his dad.

During the next five hours, this scenario regrettably repeated—positioning the tracker, adjusting the devices, movement by the dad and Dave, minutes of movement—and each time the pronghorn loped away toward the horizon. We kept pressing on, because the hunt demanded it; although every hill, every patch of rock and loose dirt were challenging.

Perhaps a Touch of the Divine

Then, an intervention occurred; divine, perhaps. I will not quibble. The tracker's battery registered low, requiring us to travel to a charging station some miles away. Being around noon, the consensus was to return to the camp, have a lunch, and resume the hunt afterwards. On the way to camp we spotted a herd of a dozen pronghorn not too distant from the road. Persistence in hunting, as in all things, is the best path to success. We agreed to hunt them. Of necessity, we hunted from the pick-up. That made the difference. David navigated to within a few hundred yards of the herd, waited, and drove closer.

The pronghorn were unperturbed. Dave drove closer and stopped. The pronghorn ran off, except one doe. The rangefinder measured it at 228 yards. Shai handed him the rifle and loaded it. Stetson rested the rifle on the lowered window and then adjusted it for elevation. We adults showered Stetson with our wisdom and instruction. I had sighted in the CZ at two inches high at 100 yards. "Shoot an inch high behind the shoulder," I recommended.

Taking aim!

Stetson pressed the trigger.

The pronghorn shook, walked ten steps and collapsed. Stetson made a perfect shot. Perfect. His face beamed like a searchlight. I was moved beyond words, trying to fathom the enormity of his accomplishment. For these moments, his life's unfairness was irrelevant. For a moment his world was reduced to a few inches in diameter and Stetson triumphed.

A father and son enjoying an outdoor adventure experience together!

Greater than the Sum of Its Parts

We abled folks get our rewards by helping others who deserved to be helped. David told me this kind of hunt "fills his heart with joy, watching a father and son spend precious moments and build memories of a day in the field." David marveled at what these Outdoor Buddies guests have to overcome. He confided that he wonders if he'd have the grit to do so. I wonder also. If he never hunted again, David said, he would have sufficient joy as long as he could work with Outdoor Buddies. "They are truly hunters," he said.

Dozens of volunteers-invested hundreds of hours to bring this hunt to reality and give deserving folks such as Stetson the opportunity to make a shot. One volunteer told me he had been blown up in Vietnam, had 15 surgeries, lungs full of asbestos and had one third lung capacity. "This is my one week-I come here to help," he said. "I'm in all kinds of pain and I feel great." Laughing masks lots of pain. Dwaine and Larry emphasized repeatedly, "rehabilitating means doing something; getting outside, showing you can get up a hill and navigate through mud." Outdoor Buddies rehabilitates. It's not about taking game, it's about engaging in the fight; life's fire center, as Teddy Roosevelt wrote.

Reliable Meats and Big Game Processing in Fort Collins donated processing the hunter's meat. Hotel rooms were donated by Dariusz and Zosia Czyszczon, (spell that fast ten times!) proprietors of the Comfort Inn in Fort Collins. An avid hunter, Dariusz supports Outdoor Buddies because it helps disabled hunters and expands their passion for the outdoors. His Comfort Inn is a few minutes from the shooting area. "They get physically and mentally tired," he said. "They need a break and we are here." Some hunters must stay more than one day to meaningfully participate and, without Dariusz, could not afford to do participate. A man of great character, Dariusz said, "I want to give back."

On my drive back to Denver I pondered why I felt so good. I hadn't hunted and my back hurt. Answers seeped like quicksilver into my aging brain. I realized, yet again, I was so blessed-so lucky-just plain lucky-through no achievement or effort of my own-to be born into this country, to have good health and to be in a position to be useful to others. My life has been enriched by being involved. Stetson's smile was my reward, for it captured the soaring human spirit.

How to Help

Wonderful organizations always need help. Get Involved. Seek out the Outdoor Buddies or start a chapter. The organization is run by volunteers. The unavoidable reality is that money is always needed; as are donations of materials, equipment, even coffee and cookies. Nothing is free and everything has a cost, including noble effort. Contact Larry or Dwaine through the website. There is no higher calling than helping those who cannot help themselves accomplish their dreams. As the lyricist Ira Gershwin wrote, 'Who could ask for anything more?'

Beulah Deer Hunts

By Dwaine Robey

There is currently an overpopulation of mule deer in and around the city of Beulah. Outdoor Buddies is helping local resident, Art Traeber, and Colorado Parks and Wildlife, in an effort to help balance the mule deer population there.

Jim Oslin and Art Traeber.

Outdoor Buddies is working with Art to harvest five does in this area. Outdoor Buddies member, Jim Oslin, recently harvested the first of the five does.

Outdoor Buddies will be working with Art and District Wildlife Manager, Gretchen Holschuh, in the near future to harvest the additional four animals from the Beulah area.

On behalf of Outdoor Buddies, I want to thank Art and Gretchen for making these opportunities available to disabled hunters.

A Youth Outreach Hunt with Outdoor Buddies

After his first shot failed to anchor the antelope, it rejoined the herd and traveled several miles before Dawson made the killing shot at a ranged 316 yards.

I would like to express thanks to Outdoor Buddies and their Youth Outreach Program for providing Dawson and other Colorado kids with this Big Game Opportunity.
